BRAND DESIGNER

1991.ConceptStore is an innovative platform showcasing leading brands from the post-Soviet space to the American market. It unveils new dimensions of fashion from Russia, Ukraine, Belarus, Georgia, and other countries, breaking stereotypes and proving that design from the CIS is worthy of global recognition.

The name 1991 symbolizes the dissolution of the USSR—a moment of transformation, openness to the world, and the birth of a new individuality. The brand carries this idea forward, curating innovative and creative design solutions that embody the spirit of modernity and the pursuit of global dialogue.

OBJECTIVE

The goal was to create a bold yet minimalist identity for 1991.ConceptStore—modern, confident, and stylish. The design needed to be visually striking while maintaining clarity, ensuring that every element reinforced the brand’s character. It was essential to capture its core concept—introducing the American market to unique designer brands from post-Soviet countries. The challenge was to balance minimalism with strong personality, making sure that style remained a defining feature and that 1991.ConceptStore was instantly recognizable.

SOLUTION

Every detail was carefully considered to create a clean, structured, and stylish identity that reflects the essence of 1991.ConceptStore. The final design is bold, elegant, and minimalistic, featuring precise typography, sharp contrasts, and a confident composition. It highlights the brand’s character—sophisticated yet expressive, modern yet authentic. The design enhances brand recognition, shaping a visual aesthetic that aligns seamlessly with the 1991 concept and strengthens its unique presence in the market.

Creating unique postcards featuring photographs taken by renowned photographers from CIS countries, based on the brand’s country of origin. For example, if a customer purchases a product from a Georgian brand, the order will include a postcard with a photograph taken by a Georgian photographer, with their name and the country where the photo was taken.

This approach highlights the cultural connection to the brand and adds a personalized touch, creating a memorable and enjoyable experience for the customer.
